

The C(k)P® - Certified 401(k) Professional Designation has been Awarded

February 4, 2014 – The Retirement Advisor University is pleased to announce that James E Mayer Jr is now credentialed as a Certified 401(k) Professional – and holds the C(k)P® Designation, which represents a distinguished achievement for the professional Retirement Plan Advisor.

The C(k)P® or Certified 401(k) Professional Designation is administered by The Retirement Advisor University in collaboration with UCLA Anderson School of Management Executive Education.

The C(k)P® Designation identifies financial professionals who have demonstrated the knowledge and experience to help affect the outcome of corporate retirement plans, and who are authorized to use the C(k)P® Designation certification mark in the USA.

The C(k)P® Standards & Certification Committee establishes the standards for the Certified 401(k) Professional Designation. Holders of The C(k)P® Designation are expected to maintain a high degree of knowledge and ability in the following areas:

- Technical Competence
- Optimizing Plan Outcomes
- Management and
- Business

To earn the right to use the C(k)P® Designation requires more than an academic aptitude. A financial professional must demonstrate a real world application of the core competencies taught in the classroom.